ABSTRACT

Methods and systems are provided for preparing for presentation a graphical element in a computer application program. The methods independently execute measurement and arrangement procedures. A data structure, sets of executable procedures, and computer-readable media are also provided for facilitating the preparation for presentation of a graphical element.

224176